Dear FCC and Chairman Pai,

I am writing to express my strong support for Net Neutrality backed by Title II oversight of ISPs. It is critical that ISPs treat all internet traffic equally no matter the source.

I own a small video production business that I operate from my home. I rely on my internet connection to upload and download video footage to internet sites for editing and distribution. Net neutrality is critically important in order to ensure that the smaller sites I utilize to transfer footage (such as frame.io) have a level playing field.

Also, it should not be up to an ISP to decide what site I want to use to stream video by favoring some over others. ISPs should not be treating sites like Netflix differently by slowing them or having them count against a data cap compared to, say, Verizon or AT&T's streaming service. This is unfair and monopolistic.

Sincerely,
David Kudell
